Document Retention and Disposal Schedule

As stated in General Data Protection Regulation and the Freedom of Information Act 2000, schools are required to maintain a retention schedule. The schedule should list the types of documents the school holds, how long they should be kept for and how they should be destroyed. Members of staff are encouraged to manage their current record keeping systems using the retention schedule and to take account of the different kinds of retention periods when they are creating new record keeping systems. The retention schedule refers to all information, regardless of the media in which it is stored.

There are several benefits which arise from the use of a complete retention schedule:

- Managing records against the retention schedule is deemed to be “normal processing” under the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Freedom of Information Act 2000
- Members of staff can be confident about destroying information at the appropriate time
- Information which is subject to Freedom of Information and Data Protection legislation will be available when required
- The school is not maintaining and storing information unnecessarily

This retention schedule sets out the minimum amount of time the school needs to keep certain records. Where there isn't an entry in the 'statutory provisions' column the retention period has been calculated by the Local Authority from current custom and practice in discussion with Leicestershire schools and other Local Authorities. This schedule is an adaptation of the Records Management Society's retention guidelines published in February 2006. This schedule has been updated with current practice and some sections have been added to reflect the variety of records kept in Leicestershire.

Where appropriate the retention schedule should be reviewed and amended to include any new record series created and remove any obsolete record series.

Destruction of Records

Where records have been identified for destruction, they should be disposed of in an appropriate manner. All records containing personal information or sensitive policy information should be shredded before disposal (if possible).

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the school to maintain a list of records which have been destroyed and who authorised their destruction. This must include:

- File reference (or other unique identifier)
- File title (or brief description)
- Number of files
- The name of the authorising officer

This will be kept in an Excel spreadsheet.

Transfer of Records to the Archives

Where records have been identified as being worthy of permanent preservation, arrangements should be made to transfer the records to the archives. A list of the records sent to the archives will be created to include the information above.

Transfer of information to other Media

Where lengthy retention periods have been allocated to records, the head teacher and governors will consider converting paper records to other media such as microfilm or digital media. The lifespan of the media and the ability to migrate data where necessary will always be considered.
